But that was in the E30 and E46. Once BMW got to the E46, they stopped making performance oriented 4 cylinders and made them primarily economy and efficiency oriented. The only performance oriented 4 cylinder that BMW has made since is in the E90 320si, where that engine is essentially a low-produced, detuned race engine for the street.

re: bmw n42 cylinder head rebuild Thanks for your input much appreciated, its a 2004 318i touring with N42B20 motor. I am based in CT, you know anyone that will be willing to borrow the timing tools, this is the only snag on this rebuild, only going to use the tools once so not worth buying the tools.
